

Echolocation Diagram

When animals use echolocation, they make sounds that reflect off surfaces and return to their ears. This information is interpreted by the animal so it can understand its environment and what action to take next.

© 2014 National Geographic Society